Fire In The Hole!

The following images are a collection of nitty gritty, down and dirty, not really direct photos, but look more like photo copies of photographs. Also, they don't have the dot pattern that printed images in newspapers would have. One thing they do have is a raw and stark reality of the passing of time illustrating the ever present cycle from order to chaos.

Because of the state of the images I decided make photo montages for each area, mainly because it was the easiest way to handle them. This grim impression may have more impact on this writer due to being among the first to crew this Kaserne as brand new. Finally, our thanks to Thomas Schulz for all of his efforts.
